

The York Region and South Simcoe Human Services and Justice Coordinating Committee

Presents

YESTERDAY/TODAY/TOMORROW

This presentation will look at the way Police interact with vulnerable individuals in the community. This workshop will discuss how training has changed the way police forces work in the community and will talk about what the future holds for future training. We will also look at the example of partnerships developed by police services and social service agencies. Consumers of services will also share their own experiences.
