In Galloway v. State, 938 N.E.2d 699 (Ind. 2010) (hereafter Galloway), the Indiana Supreme Court reviewed the trial court's verdict of guilty but mentally ill despite the unanimous opinion of experts who testified that the defendant met the Indiana criteria for the insanity defense for the murder of his grandmother. The opinion was rendered on the basis of demeanor evidence and on the grounds that Mr. Galloway was too dangerous and that the state's mental health system would not be able to provide the necessary supervision and treatment.
